A cap-dependent translation arrest promoted by E-F-G-G-E small RNA in the I-E(d)R gene results in I-E(d)R deletion. The I-E(d)R gene, required for the activation of the E alpha E beta TCR in mice, is transcribed as a larger pre-mRNA that contains a structure, named exon 9.5, which is transcribed from its own TATA-less promoter and is targeted by the E-F-G-G-E small RNA. The exon 9.5 RNA is then efficiently targeted by the I-E(d)R RNAi machinery, which results in the selective deletion of the E alpha E beta TCR beta-chain. Here we show that the E-F-G-G-E small RNA prevents the translation of I-E(d)R at a step preceding initiation, as demonstrated by the use of translation inhibition and mutant RNAs. This inhibition is due to the induction of a stable translation arrest mediated by the exon 9.5 RNA, which inhibits translation initiation, even at the cap-

dependent level. Inhibition is not due to stable cleavage of the I-E(d)R mRNA, and occurs only in the presence of a specific 5'-UTR sequence that includes exon 9.5. A Cape Cod teenager is behind bars on a first-degree murder charge after police say he killed a man at a beachfront bar. Police say an employee at the Cape Codder Bar called 911 just before 1:00 a.m. Saturday. They say that the employee had last seen the victim alive at the bar on Wednesday. Investigators say they later found 23-year-old Mark Ferris near the pier. On Friday, a judge issued a $2 million bail on the 17-year-old, who is currently being held at the Barnstable Police Department. The 17-year-old is being charged as an adult. Investigators say Ferris is charged with murder in the shooting death of 28-year-old Sean Skelton at the bar. The two men had been at the bar earlier in the evening and had argued. Skelton's family said in a statement they are shocked and saddened by the news of 82157476af
